Runaway Poem

J. M. Romig

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.kent.edu/platypus

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://digitalcommons.kent.edu/platypus/vol1/iss1/14

This Artists in Words is brought to you for free and open access by the Kent State University at Ashtabula at Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Platypus by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. For more information, please contact earicha1@kent.edu, tk@kent.edu.
Runaway Poem

J.M. Romig

As you lay next to me, sleeping
I trace the outline of your face
I kiss the brim of your collarbone and explore the world of You.
I find myself searching for the words to a runaway poem.
I suspect it's hiding around here
maybe it's in the way that you kiss, on the tip of your tongue or in the movement of your hips as you attempt an escape from the body prison we playfully wove together late last night.
Or is it at the bottom of that ocean in your eyes?
There's no way I could know, for sure so I start at your tippy toes and investigate every inch of you hunting down those words, so elusive.
I make my way to your lips once again and you stir your eyes slowly widen and you smile there it is.