

Fall 2009

Art Appreciation

J. M. Romig

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.kent.edu/platypus>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Romig, J. M. (2009) "Art Appreciation," The Platypus: Vol. 2, Article 23.

Available at: <http://digitalcommons.kent.edu/platypus/vol2/iss1/23>

This Artists in Words is brought to you for free and open access by the Kent State University at Ashtabula at Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Platypus by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. For more information, please contact earicha1@kent.edu, tk@kent.edu.

Art Appreciation

J.M. Romig

From behind your canvas
you peer up at me
taking in the details of my body.
Your scientific eyes studying me
cold
with neither lust or disgust
as if I were a vase
or a basket of fruit.
Not long before this we embraced one another in the throes of passion.
You were never more into me than that moment.
The skillful motions of your lips and tongue,
throwing my body into religious convulsions
and praising your name.
It intrigues me how you can turn that off.
How you can refrain from smiling as you draw the outline of my nipple.
How my naked body so near and ready doesn't cause that animal I've come to know so well
to overpower the artist in you.
I'm truly fascinated,
filled with both admiration and jealousy
for that woman you are creating.
An imitation getting more attention than the original.
I know, it's not really like that.
In your mind, we are closer than we have ever been but you look so far away
hiding from me behind that easel cheating on my body with your interpretation.
No doubt, she will be flawless,
and have none of my ugly imperfections.
She isn't even finished being born and I hate her already.
Although, I'll lie when you reveal her to me.
I'll tell you that she's beautiful
that I really like her.
Then, I'll make love to you right there on the floor.
Forcing her to watch.