Three Education Courses ‘Open’

Three education courses that once were limited to College of Education students now can be taken by any student for elective credit.

Introduction to Child Study (Edu 283), Introduction to Education (Edu 199), and Foundations of Secondary School Policy (Edu 455) are now open as elective courses to any student attending Kent State University or its academic centers.

In another change, Psychology 231 (Educational Psychology) is no longer required in the elementary education degree program, regardless of the catalogue under which a student may be working.

ARCHITECT’S SKETCH: Here is a drawing of what the first building at the Stark County Academic Center will look like when it is completed in March 1967. The firm of Lawrence, Dykes, Goedenberger & Associates designed the building. A color drawing can be seen in the Center Office.

STUFFING: Mrs. Mona Lu Dunlap, registration secretary, has been busy for days filling packets with registration cards for Saturday’s Orientation Day, as well as those used on pre-enrollment days.

For Winter Quarter

Registration set Saturday

More than 1,000 students are expected to complete Winter Quarter registration Saturday in the Lehman High School gymnasium and cafeteria.

Payment of fees and purchase of textbooks will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday on Registration Day for the Canton Center’s 1967 Winter term.

Plans for Registration Day will include accommodations for those students who have pre-enrolled and for those who have not yet filled out class cards.

STUDENTS who signed up for classes on Nov. 22-30 and last Saturday morning will go directly to the Lehman gymnasium, where they will pay fees at the Treasurer’s table and buy textbooks at the tables set up for display of books by the campus bookstore.

For those students who still need to enroll in classes, a separate line will form in the cafeteria, where program counselors, card checkers and Treasurer Office personnel will assist students in registration.

AFTER THE students have enrolled for classes they will proceed to the gymnasium to purchase textbooks.

Bookstore workers will return to the Canton Center on only one other day, Wednesday, Jan. 12. From 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Students may buy needed textbooks or exchange books on that date.

The Winter Quarter schedule includes 113 course offerings to Canton Center students. English course offerings dominate the Winter term slate, as 32 different classes ranging from remedial English 059 to British literature survey (English 285N) are available.

OTHER COURSE offerings include art, biology, education, social sciences, languages, natural sciences, mathematics, music, speech, industrial arts, office administration and health and physical education.

HPE classes at the Jewish Community Center on Saturday mornings feature folk dancing, swimming and basketball. Bowling classes again will be held at the Classic Lanes.

Two graduate courses are being offered and if enrollment merits it, biology, chemistry and Supervision of Instruction in Secondary Schools (Educ 541) will meet again.

THE first week of classes has met, and the second one will be pitched. Office personnel will assist students who need to enroll in classes, and the office is open during regular office hours. The registration office will be closed for the winter term between Dec. 13-30 at the university center.
in our opinion
A Need for Identity

From the tone of past announcements in the almost-weekly student or special announcements issuing from the Center Office, the Kenton Academic Center administrators obviously have good intentions. Such announcements have dealt with proposed plans for a student lounge where catering service would be offered, a Center newspaper, a student governing body, an numerous student clubs, organizations, and events.

EVEN A SURVEY was conducted to determine the Center students' desires for such activities which would provide on "identity" for Canton Center students.

Considering that Canton Center students pay the same registration fees as do Kent State University campus students, such proposals are obviously a step in the right direction.

Certainly a study of the feasibility of a Canton Center student activity fund is in order.

IT ALSO NEEDS to be recognized that Canton Center students would like to see themselves as KSU students "in toto." Such identity with the main campus would enable Canton students to attend athletic contests and other on-campus activities.

Until such time as the Center has its own student activities— and even beyond that stage—a concerted effort ought to be made to give Canton Center students this "sense of identity" with the KSU students that so many of them desire.

The 'Affluent Society'

By Dave Findley

Soon after Thanksgiving the Salvation Army will begin its annual efforts to collect canned goods, toys, and food for Christmas. Members will plead for our dollars, and we will give them our dimes and quarters.

This struggle, to insure a Christmas for a group we simply class as "less fortunate," will continue until the last hours of Dec. 24. Where will most of us be at that time on Christmas Eve?

Most of us will be sitting in our warm homes, wrapping presents with one hand and chowing down cookies and candy in our mouths with the other. We will hear the joy of small children. We will think of bright lights and shiny presents. Some of us will even go to church and remember for a few moments what Christmas originally meant.

THEN, on that magical night, we will slip into our cozy beds, remembering with a warm glow the quarter we gave to help someone less fortunate than ourselves. And we will sleep.

But at this same hour, in a part of town we try not to think about and never worry about, a young father will stand in the darkness of a small bedroom. He will hear only the heavy breathing of his sleeping children. He will think only of the Christmas they anticipate, the Christmas that will not be theirs. He will ponder what to tell them when they awaken and find only a half-heated house, a darts set for unpaid medical bills, and barely enough to eat. This young man will not sleep this Christmas Eve.

There ought to be a law, but we cannot legislate prosperity or happiness. Yet should we have to the "Great Society"? We donate dollars to erect a fountain in memory of a dead hero but only dimes to the Salvation Army or other charities at Christmas time.

Dear Gabby...

By Gabriele Von Bellum

DEAR GABBY: After climbing three flights of stairs to reach my society fund is in. I am too tired to ask questions. What can I do about this situation?

BREATHELESS: Take advantage of your temporary state to listen occasionally.

GABBY.

DEAR GABBY: Just when I thought the parking problem had improved, heavy snow hit the area. Is there any way we can get the high weeds, snow, and ice off the streets removed?

DRIFTING: Small, almost weightless snowflakes that fit easily into the car may be purchased at local discount houses for less than a dollar.

GABBY.

Puzzled? So is Gabby. But write, anyway, to GABBY, Canton Academic Center Office.

For the Record...

Mary Weida Keeps Accurate File on YOU!

Just for the record...Mary A. Weida of the Center Office staff has it all figured out. It is the task of the pleasant, always be-jeweled secretary to keep up-to-date records of students attending the Canton Academic Center.

She has had plenty of experience for her job.

Prior to coming to the Center two years ago, Mary worked four years on the main KSU campus. She also has worked with figures in her 16 years of banking experience, 15 years in the restaurant business, and two years in classified advertising and circulation departments on a newspaper.

Mrs. Weida, who was born in Canton, is responsible for keeping tabs on the records in the Center files. Among Mary's duties are transcribing records to campus as well as requesting records from campus, figuring grade points and cumulative averages for all students enrolled at the Center, handling transcript requests, change of name and address requests, and correcting grade changes.

One of Mary's more demanding tasks is verifying a student's transcript. She makes a photocopy of the transcript and fills out an accompanying letter of explanation sends the transcript to the student to be checked.

Interested in people, Mrs. Weida finds her record-keeping work to be a pleasure.

In your opinion

we need letters

Is something bothering you? Would you like to let off a little steam? Maybe gripe a little? Or maybe you have a word of praise for someone or something.

Write a letter to the editor. He'll read it; maybe even print it.

Anyhow, you get it off your chest. Right?

Canton Five To Face Big Weekend

Cagers To Battle

OSU's Lakewood, Youngstown Quints

By Jan H. Kennedy

Kent State University’s Canton Center basketball team faces a real test Friday night when it travels to Lakewood High School to do battle with the Ohio State Lakewood Branch cagers.

Coach Bob DePetrio’s quintet already has two contests in the record books. The Canton squad opened in 1965-66 season Saturday night, Nov. 27, against OSU’s Mansfield Branch at the Jewish Community Center, home court for the local colleges. Then on last Saturday night the team journeyed to Akron, where it met the Zip junior varsity.

Coach Bob DePetro has two players returning from last year’s squad in Arvis Averette, 6’7” center, and Tom Buchler, 6’3” forward.

“WE’VE BEEDED up our schedule this year,” said DePetro. “Cleveland State University JV’s have been dropped from many schools’ schedules, but we’ll play them twice. Last year, we lost to them by one point up there, but we beat them by 20 or 25 points down here.”

The KSUC team plays cagers from other extensions plus eight games with JY’s from schools such as Akron, Wooster, Youngstown, Mount Union, Cleveland State U., and the Kent State freshmen.

“Most positions are still open. Averette and Buchler are set but the other positions are up for grabs,” in the words of DePetro. Leasing candidates are Bob Harris of Mogadore, Bob Broom of Lincoln, Mark Harris of Lehman, Joe Vishard of Central Catholic, and Dave Gromes of McKinley.

“WITH THIS team, we’ll have no first and second units as such. All these boys are interchangeable,” DePetro said. Others making a strong bid for starting positions are Larry Hoover, Pete Shaheen, Herb Kling, Bob Docks and Jan Kennedy.

In its first year, KSUC posted an 8-6 record among similar competition, with Averette leading the way in rebounds and averaging 11 points, and Buchler averaging 13 points.

“We should be strengthened with the return of Bob Bookwalter, who led us in scoring last year with 17 points per game. He isn’t in school this quarter, but will register for the coming term. We have hopes of forming a league for branch colleges in the northeast area of Ohio in the near future.”

DePETRO, 39, received a B.S. at Bowling Green and a Master’s Degree in Administration from Kent State. He spent 13 years as reserve coach at McKinley High School and currently is a mechanical drawing instructor at Lehman High School. All KSUC home games will be played at the Jewish Center, are free of admission, and open to the general public. Results of the first cage game are carried in another column on this page.
