To the Class of 1970:

800 years ago Maimonides, the great physician to the Saracens, composed a personal prayer to his God which began:

"Grant me an opportunity to improve and extend my training, since there is no limit to knowledge. Help me to correct and supplement my educational defects as the scope of science and its horizon widen day by day."

And today the prayer still has as much, and perhaps greater, significance. Can we muster our resources, recruit the needed support, and learn to use new technique optimally, so as not to be overwhelmed by the torrents of new information? Can we meet the rising expectations and demands for health care? Can we adjust to the emerging patterns for delivery of health care?

You are entering the profession at a time when it is accepting more responsibilities and providing greater challenges, providing more services and requiring more support; entering new fields and yielding some individual independence; offering more social economic and professional rewards and requiring a greater commitment and more participation by the individual.

Thirty years from today you will be leading podiatry into the 21st century. Having joined you at the end of your preparation for this momentous journey, I'll not be able to claim any credit for your achievements, but I shall take pride in them.

Abe Rubin, D.P.M.
Vice President and Dean
Preface

It is with a great deal of pride that the editors of the 1970 Occopodian insert this dedication.

DR. ABE RUBIN
VICE-PRESIDENT AND DEAN
OHIO COLLEGE OF PODIATRIC MEDICINE

Dr. Rubin takes on a position of both prestige and responsibility. Having just recently left the editorship of the A.P.A. Journal, Dr. Rubin accepted the leadership of our college to make it one of the most progressive and dynamic colleges of Podiatric Medicine.

Harvey J. Stiffler Ph.D.
CHAIRMAN, BASIC SCIENCES

TEACHER OF THE YEAR

"A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

Dr. Stiffler has earned a place in the heart of each and every student at The Ohio College of Podiatric Medicine. His outstanding contributions to the advancement of the basic science department at the college are innumerable. His informative lectures and laboratory sessions will long be remembered; for in each and every one of them he exhibited sincere interest in the enrichment of his students.

Dr. Stiffler is a teacher in the true sense of the word and for this each member of the Class of 1970 thanks him. Our feelings of appreciation are very difficult to convey; our words and deeds fall short of expressing the depth of our appreciation. By bestowing upon Dr. Stiffler the honor of "Teacher of The Year 1970" we hope our sincerest feelings are eloquently expressed.

Our heartfelt gratitude and warmest congratulations go out to Dr. Stiffler. We hope the future years will find his devotion and sincerity still guiding and inspiring the students at the college.

Steven H. Glickman '70
Administration
Dr. B. C. Egerter
Chairman, Board of Trustees
It gives me great pleasure to offer my congratulations and best wishes to this graduating class.

As we step onto the threshold of the 70's, we find it is time to break with the past as we progress. We can no longer afford to lean on the crutch of the other health disciplines.

We have increased our staff of Ph.D.'s, who are specialists in their particular disciplines, but we as professionals must do likewise. We must develop teachers who are familiar not only with the allied disciplines but with the special branch of podiatric medicine in particular.

Moreover, we need more space in order to accommodate more students and to develop a center of research for the organs of locomotion and a specific diagnostic center which relates itself to the lower extremity.

Then, we must increase our faculty in all areas; in bio-physics, epidemiology, preventive medicine, podiatry, and especially in podiatric medicine—who will join with the others dedicating themselves toward better health.

This senior class is better prepared than any before, and the classes which follow will be further enriched by the achievement of your goals. History, I believe, will show that in the 70's, podiatric medicine reached the goal it set for itself. You, the professional of this specialty in the 70's, are the ones who will make the realization of our objectives possible.

As members of a health profession, we are concerned not only with the health of the individuals, but also we are aware of the social changes. It has been said that science and humanism must march together and, as Lord Horcher wrote in the "Appeal of the Common Man", "surely science was made for man, not man for science". Wordsworth had the same hope—that science would cease to isolate itself from human interests, and anticipating the time when "sense is made subservient to moral purpose".

Good luck in your every endeavor and I pray that success and happiness will be your reward.
As the Federal Government assumes greater responsibility of the total health needs of our nation, podiatry will play a most important role as an integral part of America's health team. It is our professions' responsibility to produce the podiatric health manpower which will be needed so that we may properly state, "Podiatry is the Guardian of the nation's foot health."

Many changes are taking place in the way podiatric medicine is practiced. A good number of office procedures can be delegated to people who do not have the educational level of the podiatrist. Auxiliary personnel must be taught to perform those tasks which do not require professional judgment.

Public demand for our services will continue to expand as more people come to know of podiatry as an important professional discipline through numerous media heretofore not available to podiatry. The American Podiatry Association, the many state Societies, the Federal and State governments, private insurance companies, and many other informational sources are teaching people what podiatric medicine is and what it can do for them.

Consequently, it will become incumbent upon the podiatrist to involve himself with community health programs, public health, industry, and many other areas which have received comparatively little attention from the profession in the past. As the philosophy of practice changes and the podiatrist realizes the full depth and scope of both his capabilities and responsibilities, and how he may utilize auxiliary personnel effectively, he will then make greater contribution to the health care of all segments of our population.

The challenge is before every graduate of every college in podiatric medicine. I would like to think that the academic freedom afforded to students of the Ohio College of Podiatric Medicine has created a basis for unbiased thought and action. Without preset limitations there is no boundary for the levels of success which any podiatrist may achieve. I am confident that the Class of 1970 will make significant contributions to the total well-being of our citizens, and that each member will reap more than adequate rewards for his industriousness and sincere dedication to podiatric medicine.

You and Armour serve a common cause: better care for each patient, better health care for the nation. As a Doctor of Podiatric Medicine, you take care of patients, directly. We help, indirectly, in many ways. We’re in this together.

It is not just that we make some of the medications which you find valuable in treating your patients; Biozyme Ointment and Chymoral-100 for instance. We try to do our share in aiding the advancement of podiatry by providing services which may be helpful to you personally, and to your colleagues. For example, the American Podiatry Association has joined with us to conduct professional research projects designed to provide up-to-date information on the practice of podiatric medicine.

Our Awards Program is designed to promote excellence of communication in podiatry. Each year, Armour provides a $500 award for the best paper on lesions of the foot appearing in your Association journal; and another $500 award for the best paper on any subject presented at the annual meeting of the APA.

Then there is our Information Program which:

a) publishes a periodical, the Clinical Review of Dermatology and Orthopedics of the Lower Limbs;

b) makes available to you certain reprints from the scientific literature;

c) commissions the writing of special Review articles on various disease categories to serve as postgraduate refresher materials; and

d) circulates important information on various drug products.

The fact is that we’re vitally interested in the future of podiatry, and also in the future of each new graduate doctor. If you will let us know when and where you are planning to go into practice, we’ll see if we can be of service to you right from the start.
