KSU Stark County Campus Nears Completion

Center Director Foresees Transportation Services
By Eloise Akin

"Stark County KSU students soon will have an opportunity to enjoy a college campus atmosphere," says Jack D. Morehart, Canton Academic Center Director. They will have a permanent home at the new campus, complete with student and staff union facilities, which have been lacking in the past. The campus totals 260 acres.

With this new building, over-looking Interstate Route 77 now 67 per cent complete, Mr. Morehart foresees it will be ready for occupancy sometime during Spring Quarter, 1967. It will be five stories high and will contain 1,330 square feet of floor space.

Constructed of reinforced concrete, the building's exterior of facing brick and stone trim is now under construction. Himebaugh has signed a special new brick called the Kent Colonial brick for the building, according to Mr. Morehart.

"At the present time, workers are getting ready to install thermal pane tinted glass windows in the building and complete the structure so that they can work on the interior," states Mr. Morehart.

He adds that it will be an all-electric building and completely air conditioned. There will be aluminum double-hung and sliding windows.

Dale Weaстрor, Director of Business Affairs, is in the final stages of compiling the furniture and equipment needed for the new building, according to Mr. Morehart.

"With completion of the new building in the near future, we are making arrangements for public transportation to and from the campus. In addition, there will be one large parking space for approximately 1,000 cars," affirms Mr. Morehart.

"The curriculum is being expanded to include some courses never offered in Canton before because of lack of facilities. These include chemistry, physics and geology," Mr. Morehart states.

He said the number of faculty members had increased from 15 to 31 during the past year. With the expectation of employing at least 15 more for opening of campus.

The new building will feature 36 classrooms, six laboratories, 45 faculty offices, a 75,000-volume library, 2,000-square-foot student lounge, 1,275 square feet for administrative offices, a book store and a student union building.

Administrative offices, a health center, engineering department and a reception center will be located on the first floor.

The student union floor will be the journalism department, business education department, language and foreign language center.

The chemistry, biology and agriculture buildings will feature a large lecture hall which will be a science lecture room will be located on the third floor.

On the fourth floor will be the faculty offices, work and storage space, the faculty lounge and stenographers' center.

Lotze and Rubin Instruct Music Courses
By Eloise Akin

The Canton Academic Center has a more highly developed music program than any other Kent Center. It is the only KSU Center to offer music theory and literature courses, and the only one with a performing music group—the Pep Band.

Music theory and literature courses were included in the curriculum for the first time this year and have a total enrollment of 14.

Other courses offered include music fundamentals, appreciation for non-music majors, and music for elementary education majors.

The Pep Band will appear at all home basketball games this season. Both undergraduate and graduate programs in music at KSU are accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music.

Mr. Lotze says James Lotze, Coordinator of the music program in all Kent Centers. He hopes to be able to offer, in the near future, all courses necessary in a two-year program for music majors.

His plans include possible organization of a mixed chorale ensemble by spring.

"We need letters"

Mr. Lotze and Mrs. Jeanne Rubin teach all the music courses at the Academic Center.

 Mrs. Rubin taught previously in the Salem and Cleveland Academic Centers of KSU and is a former concertmistress of the Canton Symphony.

She received her Bachelor and Master degrees from the Cleveland Institute of Music, and her Master of Music Education degree from Indiana University.

"Wassail Ball"

Newman Club will hold a Christmas Dance, open to all Canton Center students, Dec. 17 from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. in the "Wassail Ball" will be held at the Knights of Columbus Ballroom at 415 Cleveland Avenue, N.W. A band will provide music for the evening. Tickets are available from any club members for $5.00 per couple.

Workmen complete brick work on west side of main building of new campus.

Glenn A. Himebaugh

Himebaugh Advises Kentonian Staff

Glenn A. Himebaugh, formerly Director of the Kent Repository, joined the Canton Academic Center staff as Director of Information Services. Mr. Himebaugh has also assumed the duties of advisor to The Kentonian and instructor of journalism.

"My job is, basically, to set up an internal and external communications program for the Center," says Mr. Himebaugh. His responsibilities include the handling of all news releases and the writing of a weekly student news bulletin. He also writes a campus news letter which is mailed to educators, industrialists and community leaders throughout Stark County.

Mr. Himebaugh has inaugurated a weekly news digest service for faculty and administrators here at the Center. The digest is composed of newspaper articles concerning higher education.

A 1950 graduate of Ohio University at Athens, Mr. Himebaugh holds both a B.S. and a Master's degree in journalism. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society; Phi Gamma Mu, social science honorary; and Kappa Tau Alpha, journalism honorary. He is also a member of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

Pre-Enrollment Dates Set

Dates for winter pre-enrollment and registration have been set. Pre-enrollment will be held daily from 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. and from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m. November 29 through December 7. Additional sessions will be held from 6:00 to 8:30 p.m. on November 29 and December 7. Pre-enrollment will also be held on Saturday, December 3, from 9:00 a.m. to noon. Registration is scheduled for Saturday, December 10, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at Lehman High School.

The book store will be at Lehman December 10 and again on January 12 from 9:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Faculty Wives Install Officers

Mrs. Howard R. Baldwin was installed recently as president of the Kent State University-Stark County Women's Association for the 1966-67 academic year.

Other officers are Mrs. Jack D. Morehart, vice-president; Mrs. Robert D. Kistler, secretary, and Mrs. David Ragins, treasurer.

Mrs. Glenn Brown, whose husband heads the School of Music on the central campus, conducted the installation.

The organization is composed of faculty wives, women members of the academic and associated women. They plan to meet at least once each quarter.

Mendenhall Sees ‘New Kind of Leadership’ Need

By Warner DeWitt Mendenhall

Mr. Mendenhall instructs political science classes (100 and 210) at the Academic Center. A native of Georgia, he was graduated from Davidson College (Davidson, North Carolina) in 1956 with a B.S. in history. In 1960, he received his Master’s degree in political science from Duke University.

It is an established fact that many of this year’s college students will be in responsible positions of leadership within the next dozen years. As potential leaders, it might be worthwhile to take a few moments to consider the type of leadership needed in our revolutionary age.

Perhaps we can begin to determine the characteristics of the 20th century by looking at several ideas and situations that he will have to understand.

Medical evidence indicates that eternal life is a realistic prospect in the 20th century. Recently I spent some time in one of our nation’s leading hospitals. While I was there I learned that doctors were experimenting with the quick-freezing of patients who die of disease for which we have no present cure, the idea being that when a cure is available, the body can be thawed, cured and returned to normal life.

Or would it be normal? During the years in the deep freeze a man’s wife could re-marry, his property be divided according to the laws of the deceased, and his job skills made completely obsolete. This challenges our conventional ideas about the resurrection of the dead.

Scientific evidence indicates that we may travel to another planet. There is probably some unreality in this idea. So far we have spent millions of dollars and we are still only reaching for the moon. It appears that the first star that might be inhabitable is four light years away. By comparison, the moon is only one thirty-millionth of a light year away.

Faced with the reality that space travel in the real sense is only a fantastic dream, maybe the leaders of the 20th century should rethink our commitment to the space race. This race is now absorbing the majority of our brain-power, thus withdrawing it from other pursuits. From a military point of view, stationary satellites are more vulnerable than guided missiles. In addition, the space race has become an instrument in the cold war—a testament of national vanity, a demonstration of power. As we are faced with the necessity of a thaw in the cold war, perhaps our thinking should challenge the political and military validity of our space program.

There is circumstantial evidence that other civilized populations are entering our atmosphere. Is it possible that the fear of our nuclear wars has attracted the attention of other civilizations who might be concerned with their safety? Twentieth century leadership should take a long look at the secrecy that surrounds official investigations of UFO evidence.

Political evidence indicates that we may have to resign our loyalty with the Soviet Union and re-evaluate our thinking relative to Red China. For instance, a number of Vietnamese have declared that they have been under pressure from the Chinese Communist premier and the Soviet foreign minister to settle for less than the North Vietnamese think is right. To what extent is our present Vietnam policy forcing a coalition between the USSR and China? Why is it that most of the allies are opposed to our position?

There is social evidence that the basic ideological agreement essential to the maintenance of American democracy may be in jeopardy.

Most disheartening of all is the election evidence that indicates that American political man has turned to demagoguery rather than leaders. Paced with many vexing issues, the American voting public seems to be supporting the men who have the simplest solutions. No problem of the 20th century has a simple solution. The simplification of issues by the two political parties in order to secure votes is a denial of the problems themselves.

The first task of the 20th century leader will be to convince the public that trial and error are appropriate and necessary in the political world and that great flexibility will be required to bring order out of chaos. Leaders of tomorrow, it is rather for you to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us.

An Editorial

Canton Central students are finally coming together to make their will known. A petition, demanding the right to know, before registration, who will instruct a course is being circulated.

Certainly an answer from the administration is long overdue. I believe this action by the student body to be a healthy sign. At last we realize that together we stand a fair chance of receiving some response from the administration.

I suggest that even better results might be had through more intense support of the Student Senate. The Senate could well become a means of communication with the administration. Nevertheless, the original question remains. How about it, gentlemen?

When asked to comment on their feeling of the program's speakers, students said:

John Perry — "You learn more by an outside speaker pointing up particulars in addition to the theory you get in class."

Roger Kraft — "It's more interesting than usual."

The mayor sounds good. I like non-partisan comments.

Gloria Sheldon — "It gives us a chance to hear men we would probably never hear otherwise."

Students commented on the Mayor's speech:

Once free, I will walk painless as the sea

rest in white, dress in gray, dance in color; Endless night I will roam, All secrets known and laugh.

Ragosin Finding Life Moving Experience

By Karen Cherryholmes

He will only be 30 the month of December. That has caused him to lead a busy life. That busy man is David Ragosin, instructor of English here at the Kenton Academic Center. He has been here for a year and a half. His activities were many and varied.

Mr. Ragosin was born in Youngstown, where he graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School in 1954. He attended Adelbert College of Western Reserve University and received his Bachelor of Arts in English with a minor in chemistry and biology.

His college life was busy. Mr. Ragosin was program director of the radio station; president of the Jewish student organization; secretary of the Senior Class; member of Student Congress; member of the Campaign Committee. He was also a member of a number of clubs and organizations.

Mr. Ragosin received his master's from Western Reserve in September, 1959, with concentration in linguistics.

He then attended the Kenton Academic Center to go into teaching, he replied, "No, teaching was the last thing I wanted."

Republic Steel hired him as a technical editor and writer at its research center in Independence, Ohio.

In January, 1961, he left Republic and joined the faculty of Kent State, where he taught English on campus and at several of the centers.

Mr. Ragosin left in August of 1963 to teach at Northeastern University in Boston. He began studies for his doctorate at Boston University.

He turned to life insurance and worked for Prudential Life in Boston. Mr. Ragosin returned to Youngstown and was employed on the Prudential Life Insurance Co.

Because of unpleasant hours, he returned to teaching at academic centers of Kent State in September, 1964. In January he bought the home at 2031 Boardman Ave. N. W. where he still resides.

While teaching at the Kenton Center, the instructor is working on his Ph.D. at Kent and plans to complete his residence at the end of the winter quarter. He is speculating on a new career.

Even with this active schedule, Mr. Ragosin finds time to relax. He reads, plays bridge and has fun with his children.

Mr. Ragosin and his wife, Edina, have been married eight years. She is a Junior in Kent State in the College of Fine and Professional Arts and is majoring in speech pathology and audiology. They have three children, Tammi, Teri and Michael.

When asked how he feels about his busy life, Mr. Ragosin replied, "Well, I don’t sleep very much!"

What's Interest In Drama Here?

Are you interested in having a drama program at the Kenton Center? Or, better yet, are you interested in taking an active part in it?

If so, please see Miss Mary Jane Boyle, speech instructor here at the Center. She is conducting a survey and would like every student to fill out a questionnaire she has prepared.

Forms are available at the American Legion and Lebanon High School entrances. Since Miss Boyle would like complete participation in this survey, the forms will be available at the distribution points until the end of the week.

Swope Coaches Center "Flashes"

By Wilbur Tongret

A new coach and a host of new faces greeted students at the first home game of the Canton Academic Center's basketball team on Saturday, November 28, against Ohio State University's Lima Center.

Regular season home games are played at the Canton Jewish Community Center, 29th and Harvard N. W., and start at 8:00 p.m. As the team enters its third season, Raymond Swayne succeeds Robert DelPietro, who guided the past two years.

Mr. Swayne, 55, of 632 Pierce Ave. N. W., North Canton, compiled an impressive high school coaching record at North Canton and Greenfield in southwestern Ohio. Retired from coaching since 1952, he is interested in the challenge of modern defense to his patterned offense.

The Canton Center basketball team recorded 6-1 Phil Horneck, 6-1 Rick Shepard, 5-11 Larry Bradshaw, 5-10 Jim Nelson, 5-10 Tom Wright, 5-10 Jim Wright, and 5-8 Bruce Gibson. Thirty-five tries out for the team.

Cagers Lose to Midland

"Two momentsary losses took their toll," said Coach Raymond Swayne, "in describing the first three minutes of play which saw the Canton Center basketball team fall behind 16-0 in the opening game against Midland College of Commerce at Ashland Nov. 8. "The reaction was typical," said Mr. Swayne. "For a team most of whose members were getting their first taste of inter-collegiate competition."

The Canton cagers rallied at various stages of the game as the coach experimented with several combinations, but were unable to overcome the early deficit, losing to the more experienced Midland team 90-69.

Kent Canton was down 47-32 at half-time. Leading the scoring for Midland were veteran forward Bob Lee, who averaged 33 points per game last year, with 25 points, guard Dan Schlenbaker with 20, and center Dan Brown, 18.

Pacing the Canton team were center Dave Seffen with 19 points and forward Henry McGhee, 14.

Six Chosen As Cheerleaders

Six girls have been chosen as cheerleaders for the 1966-67 basketball season. The girls, graduates of five different Stark County high schools, will spark enthusiasm at all eight of Kent Canton's home games. All home games will be played at the Canton Jewish Center.

The squad is led by captain Sandy Mayfield of 2000 Yale Ave. A sophomore majoring in elementary education, she is a graduate of Lehman High School.

The other cheerleaders are: Suzanne Jackson of 3214 Hursh Place, a sophomore majoring in elementary education, and she is a graduate of Lincoln High School.

Becky Kilkenny of 1219 Washington Blvd. in Louisville is a sophomore majoring in physical education and she is a graduate of Louisville High School.

Carole Schoneberg of 2831 11th St. is a sophomore majoring in biology. She is also a graduate of Louisville High School.

Barb Russell of 2525 Howland Ave. is a freshman majoring in art. She is a graduate of Hoover High School in North Canton.

Linda Jo Cichelli (alternate) lives at 497 Kerman Ave. in Massillon. A freshman majoring in elementary education, she is a graduate of Massillon Washington High School.

The sponsors will be Mrs. Kathy Waltz and Mrs. Mona Prince, both part-time members of the Kent Canton English and physical education staff.

Cheer!

Students are asked to familiarize themselves with the following cheer which will be used at this season's basketball games:

WE'VE WITH YOU TEAM
We're with you team so tight,
We're with you team so tight,
We're with you team,
We're with you team,
We're with you team,
Fight! Fight! Fight!
