Mary Kay wins

Sophomore education major Mary Kay Ley will represent Stark County Branch at the ORC basketball tournament as the basketball queen. Her attendants are Elaine Cebulko, Josette Clouse, Debbi Scott and Nancy Wyles.

Mary Kay was crowned by Branch Director Jack D. Morehart during ceremonies at the Stark-Salem game.

The Stark Branch basketball queen was picked by student ballot last week.

Pollution group divides chores

The anti-pollution group at Stark Branch has had several meetings lately and is researching the pollution problem.

The group has divided into two sub-groups — one to study air pollution and one to study water pollution. Research is being done mainly on the local level, although national statistics are also involved.

The actions of the group are focused around an April 22 "teach-out." The teach-out will be a nationwide attempt to share information on pollution with both students and members of the community.

A series of nationally recognized speakers will discuss the pollution issue on or around April 22 in various parts of the country.

The anti-pollution group at the Branch is a loosely knit organization and needs members who are willing to work.

Anyone interested can attend meetings which are usually at 10 a.m. on Thursdays in Room 206.

Stark County Branch enters the Ohio Regional Campus basketball tournament tonight at 9 at Middletown High School.

The Cobras meet the winner of last night's game between KSU Tuscaloosa Branch and the Ohio University Chillicothe Branch team.

Anticipating a win tonight, the Cobras will play tomorrow at 3 p.m. and, again, at 9 p.m. for the Regional Campus championship.

Twelve teams are represented in the Ohio Regional Campus Tournament including four Kent State branches, three Ohio University branches, two each from Cleveland State and Ohio State and one from Miami University.

Teams were chosen and seeded according to their records.

Emme Kemp here next Friday

Western soul, international and popular jazz music will be performed by the Emme Kemp Trio in concert next Friday at the Stark Branch.

The program, an event in the artist-lecture series sponsored by the Student Activities Council, will be presented in Lecture Hall 100 at 8 p.m.

Admission is free to Branch students, faculty and staff. Other persons may purchase tickets at the door.

Singer - pianist - composer - lyricist Emme Kemp studied piano 15 years and attended Northwestern University, Chicago Conservatory and Southwest Conservatory.

Serving as a WAC in the U.S. Army, she received training in choral directing.

Various youth organizations, USO hospitals and homes for the aged and blind have received her services and enjoyed her music.

Miss Kemp," according to Elwood Emerick Management of New York, "brings to the stage her own distinctive style . . . Her music — jazz, pop or in any vein — is driving, cool, rhythmic, tuneful and always individualistic. She wins her audiences with her warmth, her smile and her wonderful sense of communication."

"Her program was exactly right for a college concert — within reach of all but on a high standard," said James Braithwaite, chairman of the lecture-recital committee of Talladega (Ala.) College.

Backed by a guitarist and a pianist, Miss Kemp has appeared in supper and night clubs, in concerts and on radio and television.

Pledges named

President Sally Kendig of Sigma Chi Beta has announced the following pledges to her sorority:

Claudia Tatterson, Lee Ann Salmons, Carole Dolmus, Jackie Lake, Cathy Lake, Barbara Currence, Kathy Persons and Diane Roman.

Phi Delta Psi fraternity has 15 new members, according to president Gary Hoce.

Ron's unhappy

To the Editor:

I noticed the beautiful casket on the first floor today and it stirred my emotions. However, my emotions were not stirred with hatred toward the Salem Cougars but with the futurity of such activities. It is bad enough that high schools put so much emphasis on winning basketball games. Must we do the same thing in college?

What constructive purpose does it serve this university branch to provide expensive blazers for such groups as the Cobrinas? How does the money spent on numerous athletic banquets help the struggling chemistry major? Wake up students and find out how your money is spent!

Finally, I do not think that we need an inefficiently operated queen contest. The necessity of a queen contest itself is questionable. However, a contest in which the nomination procedures are vague and the ballots are easily falsified is never needed.

ROTC tabled

In a divided vote, the student senate has tabled a resolution to initiate a study concerning the establishing of an ROTC program at the Stark County Branch.

The senate, which acted on the measure at its meeting last Sunday, was divided on the issue, with eight senators voting to table the resolution and five opposed to that action.

The measure includes initiating a study concerning the recruiting of students from the Branch by military services.

Those senators who were in favor of tabling the measure argued that at the present time Branch officials are not considering an ROTC program and that the bill should not be brought before the senate until such time.

In other action, the senate unanimously passed a revised bill to erect and illuminate the "Peace on Earth" sign.

That action came after Student Body President Jeffrey Sigler vetoed the measure passed by the Senate at an earlier meeting.

Like a mystery?
Kentview is one

By Terry Scott

Our view of Kentview is no view. Located to the northwest of the Stark County Branch, Kentview, Inc., consists of an 80-acre tract of land designed to function as a campus-oriented development.

Upon completion it will provide housing for faculty and students, a service center with a courtyard, shops, a restaurant and a church.

The church, on which construction is to begin soon, will be the John Knox United Presbyterian Church.

The above information, with the exception of the church, is approximately two years old.

A spokesman for Myron K. Bircher, architect for the development, said that they have not worked on the project for the past two years.

According to Judge John R. Milligan, one of the company's 47 stockholders, improvements in sewer and water systems are the only drawback before construction begins.

An article in Montage over a year ago listed the same reasons for delay of construction.

Although no new tracts of land have been sold, actual development of the land seems a long way off.

Edward Yuhas, president of Kentview, Inc., has mysteriously disavowed any connection with the corporation and was silent when attempts were made to question him.

Kentview where are you?

Questions coffin

To the Editor:

I am certain that the coffin erected in the main hall across from the elevator on Friday, Jan. 29, was placed there with most probably only the best of intentions. The exhibit communicated good will, hope, and faith in our team, interest and 100% backing.

Still, a coffin is of poor taste for a situation as this. Granted, the intentions were that this coffin represented the above feelings; nonetheless, a coffin, casket, however you look at it, still symbolizes sacred death.

Maybe it's just that the relationship of a casket to the dignity of man, to the solemnity of death rings only too clear for me. I still hear the echo of the bells, only two weeks old.

Band expands, players needed

Stark Branch music department will expand its program to include woodwind and brass ensembles next term, band director Albert Vinci has announced.

Recruiting is in progress now for the woodwind quintet which will meet next term on Saturdays from 2 to 3 p.m. in Lecture Hall 100.

Brass ensemble will meet on Saturdays from 1 to 2 p.m. in Room 100.

Both ensembles may be taken on a permission basis only. Interested students should contact Mr. Vinci in Room 452 before spring registration.

Concert band will practice from 12 to 1 p.m. on Saturdays, and lab band will meet at 3 p.m.

Concert band will remain on the audit, credit or non-credit basis, but the ensembles and lab band may be taken for credit only.

Although most of the lab band positions have been filled, there are a few openings. Anyone interested may contact Mr. Vinci for an audition.

Due to insufficient members of concert band, there has been difficulty, this term, in having practices, said Mr. Vinci. However, he hopes the band will perform in local high schools.

The lab band is scheduled for several off-campus engagements this term.

Senate rejects Seffens censure

Editor's Note: The following article was written by Bob Bernier, former Montage reporter now on central campus, as a followup to an article which appeared in Montage last Friday.

The Student Senate of Kent State University rejected the censure of David Seffens, former student body president at the Stark Branch, at its January 27 meeting.

Seffens, who is now a student government attorney general on the main campus, had been censured by the KSU Bar Association (SBA) along with KSU Student Body President Frank Frisina for an alleged infraction of the KSU Student Body Constitution.

The SBA censure accused Frisina of making an unconstitutional appointment to a student-faculty committee and Seffens with illegally accepting the appointment.

The SBA censure was offered to the senate as a resolution and was reviewed by the senate rules and judiciary committee.

In a lengthy report, the committee found that there was no violation for which Seffens or Frisina were responsible.

The committee pointed to a number of "technical fouls" in handling student-faculty committee appointments, including ones made by the chairmen of committees, the office of the university president and the senate itself.

The committee, which voted unanimously to reject the censure, reasoned that Frisina and Seffens could not be held responsible for infractions no greater than and in part caused by previous infractions.

Arlin Liss, president of SBA, admitted to the committee that his organization had made an inadequate investigation into the matter before issuing their statement.

The resolution calling for the censure was withdrawn following the committee report.

Hotline

Jeff Sigler
Student Pres.

I am glad to see the interest students are taking in the pollution discussions being held here. I urge students to recognize the goals of these discussions and to take part, if only through sympathetic participation.

The branches are increasingly becoming an intrinsic part of Kent State life. For example, last week I was informed that there would be branch representation on the Dean's Advisory Council of the College of Arts and Sciences.

According to posted regulations, smoking is prohibited beyond the terrazzo areas; however, individual instructors may allow smoking in the classroom. In this situation, students should provide themselves with an ashtray.

A problem concerning lockers has been brought to my attention. Many students are leaving books in the lockers overnight, which is contrary to regulations.

Items collected from these lockers at the end of the day may be retrieved in Room 218. We hope that students will cooperate to provide lockers for other students.

Kuder tests set

If your future seems rather hazy and uncertain, the Kuder Occupational Survey, to be administered on Saturday, February 14, could provide valuable information.

The test is scheduled for 9 a.m. in Room 301. Interested students should sign up in Room 103 no later than noon next Friday.

Results and requested counseling will be available to students during winter and spring quarters.

Students busy in communications

The College of Fine and Professional Arts was created to help prepare students for future professions in the particular field of their choice.

However, a number of students at Kent Stark have jumped their graduation dates to begin work in their fields of endeavor, particularly in the area of mass communications.

Four Branch students are employed by area newspapers. Jim Hillibish, a former editor of both the Glenwood Eagle's View and the Montage, works summers as a photographer for the Canton Repository. Tim Moriarity writes for the Massillon Independent, Annetee Evans for the North Canton Sun and Kari Held for the Alliance Review.

Aside from the newspapers, there are quite a few students involved with radio. George Lehner of WTIG, Nick Shaheen of WNYN, Mike Russell of WOIO, and Dave Senften of WHBC are all gaining practical experience as newscasters.

WOIO's Mike Hudak is presently host, along with cohort Russell, of the Saturday Morning Sports Roundup. Last summer and fall, Hudak hosted a talk show, first with 1969 Lehman class salutatorian Aazy Aaby and then going solo.

Senften, the WHBC newsmans, likes radio because it's challenging, interesting and does not fall into the drums of other professions.

He said there was a tremendous responsibility in radio and newspaper reporting, especially since Vice President Agnew's recent criticism against bias in the mass media.

Cliff Haga, photo editor of The Repository, thinks that it's very important for college students to get as much experience as early as possible in their professions.

"Besides the fact that practical experience is needed to get a good job in radio or newspapers," Mr. Haga said, "the experience will tell a person whether he really likes that field, and if not, it's best to be young enough to get out."

However, few of the students here seem to be candidates for that last quote.

Cobras are KSU champs

By Bob George

"Fifteen and one, fifteen and one," chanted Stark Cobra fans as the Cobras neared the end of their 91-81 defeat of KSU Salem.

The chant referred to the fact that Salem had been unbeaten in fifteen previous contests.

Starting the game off right, the Cobras jumped to an eight point lead before Salem scored their first basket.

Stark popped in 13 of their first 18 shots from the field, only to see the Cougars come back to take a 47-43 halftime advantage.

The crowd which packed Jackson gym watched as Stark roared back and led the Salem Cougars by as much as 14 points on the way to a victory.

Dan Todd paced the Cobras with 29 points, followed by Chet Bryant and Mike Finn with 19 each and Ed Hutchison 10, Ezra Pittman 9, Tom Breedlove 8 and Ed Gerzina 2.

Finn and Bryant led the rebounding department with 10 apiece.

Stark won by hitting 35 of 85 from the field for 41%.

Morehart travels

In recent visits to a number of colleges and universities, Branch Director Jack Morehart has gathered further information for the planning of Kent Stark's Health and Physical Education Building and Fine and Professional Arts Laboratory and Classroom Building.

Besides traveling to help in the development of these buildings, Mr. Morehart is reviewing data from periodicals and other publications.

Among the institutions that were visited are Denison University, Kenyon College, Ashland College and Ohio State University.

Mr. Morehart will travel next week to Miami, Florida, to study the facilities of Miami Dade Junior College and the University of Miami.

We need help!

Montage is seeking a student interested in doing photography. We have the camera, if you have the time! If you are interested in joining the staff, see editor Nancy Weber or advisor Glenn Himbaugh in Room 207.
