Senate okays Branch Council membership criteria

Student Senate approved the screening committee’s procedures for the selection of recommendations for Branch Council members last Sunday.

Applicants for Branch Council will be judged on the following basis: organizational involvement and general interest, demonstrated leadership ability and the personal interview of the applicants with the screening committee.

Each of these categories will be rated by a 1 to 10 point system.

Each member of the screening committee, acting as an individual, will assign points for each category.

Points will be computed by totaling the points from categories one and two. Points from category three will be averaged and multiplied by four. The resulting point average will be derived by adding the above three totals.

Category three will be averaged as it will be impossible for all members of the screening committee to see all 21 applicants, according to chairman Johnnie Maier.

At least two members of the screening committee will be available at the time of interviewing. These interviews will be open to other interested senators.

Faculty Senate has elected its representatives to Branch Council. They are Jerry Figurski, Dr. Jean Mallan, Elsie Reaven and Wendell Smith plus the three Faculty Senate officers, Denny Bettisworth, Terry Ford and Dr. Kenneth Wulff.

Players present off-beat satire

Fans of Edward Albee, Jack Douglas or the "Fire sign Theater" should enjoy the upcoming Cedar Chest Theatre production.

Featured will be Jean-Claude Van Itallie's "America Hurrah", a trio of off-beat plays satirizing man in the 20th century.

Performances will be February 26, 27 and 28 at the Cedar Chest Theatre. Starting time will be 8 p.m.

The cast, which is interchanged throughout the playlets, includes Larry Caldwell, Melody Liberatore, Dan Ryman, Phil Locker, Walter Boswell, Shirley Jacobs, Margie Mohr, Becky Klindworth, Melvin Dansby, Angela Uliveto, Louie Rinaldi and Roberta Edwards.

"Interview" is the title of the first segment. It involves four interviewers and four job applicants who speak lines simultaneously, try to impress each other and generally carry on a confused dialogue. Priests, politicians and psychiatrists are among the people chided in this piece.

Following "Interview" is "TV". It involves three TV critics and a set of TV actors who carry on different conversations which seem to juxtapose each other. Basically, it is a parody on man's inability to separate reality from fantasy in the modern world.

Finally comes "Motel", a strange episode about a motel-keeper and a couple who want to rent a room for the night. All three are dressed as grotesque dolls, and while the motel-keeper spouts (via tape) ten minutes' worth of cliches about modern life, the couple silently goes about destroying the set.

Ingmar Bergman films start tonight

Tonight marks the premiere of the Ingmar Bergman film festival that will be held here this month.

"The Seventh Seal" will be shown at 8 o'clock in Room 100. Students will be admitted free.

"Wild Strawberries" will be shown Saturday night at 8, while two other Bergman classics will be seen Feb. 13 and 14, both at 8 p.m.

Interfaith Campus Ministry will conduct seminars related to the films and Bergman's theology on five consecutive Wednesdays, starting next week.

These discussions, scheduled 3 to 5 p.m. in Room 114 will be coordinated by Rev. Tom Douce, Interfaith Director.

Bosley Crowther, retired cinema critic for the "New York Times", lavishly praised "Seventh Seal", which took top honors at the 1958 Cannes Film Festival.

Theme of the film is man's search for God and meaning in life. Set in plague-torn medieval Europe, this symbolic drama opens with a knight playing a game of chess with death, and moves on mystically from there.

STARK CAMPUS DIRECTOR JACK D. MOREHART (right) views the portrait which was presented to him Thursday night, January 28, at the Stark-Salem basketball game at Glenwood High School. The portrait, presented by students, staff, faculty, administration and friends for 11 years of service, will hang in the main building here. With Mr. Morehart are Salem's director, Thomas Cox, and Stark coed Pam Krause who made the presentation. Mr. Morehart was honored at a reception here after the game, won by the Cobras 94-81.
Elke's angry

Dear Editor,

On January 26, I talked to a fellow student who intended to run for the proposed Branch Council. He could not for a simply outrageous reason:
He is not a member of a club here.

Is it really more important to socialize in a school club than to be honest and concerned about another human being, demonstrated by volunteer activities in the community?

How do you determine leadership qualities by popularity contests? Hardly anyone can get really involved here, as school is so “temporary”.

Why is it taken for granted that members of Student Government will be able to spend enough time and effort on the Branch Council?

I feel we need more people involved with matters concerning all of us.

You who are already “in” Student Government should treat a concerned person as you wanted to be treated before you got “in”.

Quit bitchin' and get in gear!

It has come to our attention that several Student Senate members have some complaints about MONTAGE. It seems that MONTAGE, according to them, is not a student-oriented newspaper, and that we are not conscientious in printing student letters.

MONTAGE is written and made up by students for students. The paper’s obligation is to inform, entertain and enrich the knowledge of the students at this campus.

There are presently 25 students on the staff, 10 of whom are enrolled in the offered journalism class. But, 15 others participate merely because they are interested in contributing to the paper.

We have three columns written by students who use their discretion as to subject matter.

One column, Bird Droppings, is written by Mike Hudak, who is a journalism student. The other two columns are written by Mike Ebert, Student Activities Council director, and Butch Mantho, president of the student body.

None of these students are told what to write or how to write it.

Mr. Mantho was elected by the students to represent the students and if his column doesn’t reflect the student voice, that’s not our fault.

Several student senators seem to be unaware that an invitation was issued to all students to participate in some way on the paper. A meeting was held just before fall quarter for all interested students, not just for journalism majors or minors. Where were you then, complaining senators?

In the past, MONTAGE has printed every letter received with the exception of two. One was irresponsible, potentially libelous and dealt with a personal matter concerning four persons. It was of no general interest to the student body.

The other letter was totally incoherent. Incidentally, both were written by student senators.

Please note, senators, the editorial policy of MONTAGE is located in the box below. It has been there for quite a while.

We invite you senators and any other students to write us if you have a complaint or a suggestion. We appreciate all constructive criticism, but we must and do reserve the right to set certain standards by which the letters are judged. If we feel they are responsible, non-libelous, in good taste (respectable) and deal with issues which are relevant to general interest, they will be printed.

If a letter does not meet the above standards, it is ignored.

In the meantime, we would suggest that those senators who have nothing better to do than bitch without valid cause about MONTAGE join their fellow senators and do the job they were elected and appointed to do.

Editorial Policy

Editorials appearing in MONTAGE reflect a majority opinion of the Editorial Board. The Editorial Board reserves the right to edit, condense or reject all matter submitted for publication consideration and holds the author solely responsible for its content. Letters to the editor should not exceed 300 words in length and must be signed. Names will be withheld on request.
Ratner to discuss family life and sex

"Do College Students Understand the Sex Revolution?" is the topic of a lecture/dialogue that will be given by Dr. Herbert Ratner next Friday, at 8 p.m. in Lecture Hall 100.

Dr. Ratner’s appearance will be sponsored by the Newman Club and is open to all students and the general public.

He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is director of the Oak Park, Ill., Department of Public Health.

Dr. Ratner is a former editor of the Bulletin of the American Association of Public Health Physicians and is editor of Child and Family Quarterly, which publishes articles illuminating traditional concepts of family life and sex.

He is secretary-treasurer of the National Commission on Human Life, Reproduction and Rhythm, the publisher of Child and Family Quarterly.

Speaks on youth

Enthusiasm was cited by Dr. James G. Coke as one of the strengths and weaknesses of today’s youth when he spoke here last Friday to the Political Science Forum.

Dr. Coke, a research fellow at the KSU Center for Urban Regionalism and a political science professor on main campus, spoke on the student’s role in politics.

He claimed that enthusiasm leads to extremes and eventually to frustration.

Students feel that the system is "corrupt at best and manipulative at worst," he said.

Trying to explain the "credibility gap," Dr. Coke noted that young people tend to label "good guys and bad guys".

Dr. Coke said that, although the system has improved, the ideals that people expect it to produce have soared much higher in proportion.

The last segment of the period was spent in a question-answer-discussion.

Enter Hudie's trivial trivia contest

I am more than likely the only person alive who can recite the starting lineup of the 1924 Washington Senators, tell you the only bachelor president of the United States and give you a complete list of Nelson Eddy’s hit songs while keeping a straight face.

And people wonder why I hold myself in such awe.

Yes, trivia is indeed an art -- an art which deserves to be rewarded. Being such, I proudly present the “First Annual Bird Drop­pings Trivia Contest.”

First prize will be a three-record set of Elvis Presley’s 50 all-time hits, second prize will be a rare soundtrack album from G. E. Thea­ter, (with a picture of it’s host, Ronald Reagan, on the cover) and third prize will be Merle Haggard’s album, “Okeef from Muskogee,” recorded live in that famed city.

All entries should be taken to Room 207. The deadline is noon, Friday, February 12.

This contest is not open to widows, ex-majorresses or beauty contest winners.

In case of ties, bribes will be accepted.

As Hymie Williams might say, “Good luck -- and may the best man win!”

To Discuss Magazine

A meeting of the student publications committee has been called for Wednesday at 3 p.m. in Room 203.

Consideration will be given to the establishment of a Stark Campus literary magazine.
Appointment of a new senator was approved and two bills were passed when the Student Senate met last Sunday.

Full capacity was achieved in the senate with the approval of Dan Lux as a junior senator.

Two bills to provide greater communication with the student body were passed.

Senator John Maier's bill to establish a student government quarterly notebook detailing all activities by student government was passed after the second reading.

The other bill, proposed by Senator Janice Sigrist, established a student government bulletin board.

Constitutions for two organizations were approved after a report from the committee on campus organizations.

The Black Student Union and the Political Science Forum are now recognized organizations.

A bill by Senator Kurt Lowdermilk to provide for a telephone in the Cedar Chest Theatre had its first reading.

It was referred to the Central Research Committee for further research.

The bill follows last quarter's recommendation that a telephone be placed in the theatre.

Since no action was taken on the recommendation, funds from the student contingency fund will be applied to finance the current bill.

If you need money...

If you are in need of financial assistance for Fall Quarter 1971, you should make application by March 15.

That reminder has been issued by William Casto, coordinator of group affairs who handles financial aids here.

Appointments to see Mr. Casto may be made in Room 103, the student relations office.

Mr. Casto has information on a full range of loans and other types of assistance.

Stark not a hotbed of Women's Libbers

BY ELOISE BOEHM

"If the Women's Liberation movement offered constructiveness in achieving equality, there would be an enthusiastic group of Stark County Regional Campus women participating," said a junior co-ed, "but now the movement consists of a bunch of emotionally unstable women who have not devised a successful means of achieving their goal."

The majority of Stark co-eds apparently believe that women should be granted an equal chance to move freely in our society, without discrimination, but oppose the tactics used.

"It's frustrating that some women are discriminated against in the business world, but I can't see how picketing and burning bras is going to solve the problems of women's equality," explained a sophomore co-ed.

The Gung-ho approach of the movement to be released from the bondage of a male-dominated world has proved unsuccessful. Females have not yet been persuaded to join the movement and unite for equal rights.

"I'm not apathetic to the movement. Getting an education will hopefully prove that I am a capable intelligent adult and should be treated to the same benefits to which a man is treated. That's my way of fighting for equality," a freshman co-ed noted.

Many Stark County Campus co-eds believe that there are instances in which women are incapable of holding a man's job.

"When both a man and a woman have the same skills I believe they should be considered equal. But there are some things that women cannot surpass men in, and they should be willing to accept this," commented sophomore Mary Jamieson.

Robin Gorga, Stark student, said, "I can't see a girl doing the same work that a man can do. I don't think that she is physically and emotionally capable."

"I feel that, basically, women have achieved equality," explained sophomore Pat Dietz. "I don't care for the methods that the liberation movement employs to accomplish equal rights."

Rena Halkias, Stark co-ed, comments, "I think that women already have equal rights which are suited to them. If they want all the rights of a man, they should be subject to the draft."

Student is top cop

A part-time student at the Stark Regional Campus of Kent State University has been selected "Patrolman of the Year" by the Ohio State Highway Patrol.

Patrolman Timothy D. Doughty, a 29-year-old Patrol veteran of five years, received the honor earlier this month.

As an award for his duties, Ptl. Doughty received the Patrol's "Petroleum Award", a $150 grand from a leading petroleum company, which will be matched by the State Patrol, to further Ptl. Doughty's education.

He thinks he may attend Northwestern Traffic Institution for a traffic course. The course deals with supervisory capacities.

In addition, the officer was the recipient of a plaque from Patrol Col. Robert Chiaramonte and a watch with the State Patrol's insignia imprinted on it.

Officer Doughty attended Ohio State University and then transferred his credits to the Stark Regional Campus, where he currently has 93 hours in the two-year associate degree in law enforcement program.

The patrolman is presently serving on temporary assignment in Columbus, but expects to enroll at the Stark Campus again this spring.

When asked about the problems between the police and young people, officer Doughty replied, "There is a lack of communication between police and young people. Law officers must bend somewhat in understanding people."

He added that the real problem lies with the radical students, brought up to look upon law enforcement officers as "the bad guy."

In responding to the question of what can be done to curb this feeling he said, "Much can be done in educating policemen into the thinking and psychology of the public. You must try to change many officers' attitudes into letting them know they are servants of the public."
Safety steps taken here

Secretary of Safety Marc Whitman and President Henry Mantho have taken steps this quarter to improve safety standards at Kent State Stark.

A bill authored by Mr. Whitman and President Mantho was introduced January 31 at the Student Senate meeting to install a telephone at the Chest Theater.

President Mantho explained because of the distance between the theater and the main building, it would be too time-consuming to phone from the main building.

At press time, Mr. Whitman had not received a response to a letter written to the B&O railroad requesting installation of safety devices at the crossing on Dressler Rd. near the Faculty Annex.

President Mantho suggested any student with a complaint concerning the crossing should write the B&O railroad and submit his name and address to the student government office, Room 218.

Intramurals end second week

Playing a full slate of games, intramural basketball at the Jewish Center provided plenty of excitement Saturday afternoon.

Brewers (1-1) edged Spare Parts (0-1) 40-32, McCauley (1-0) dumped Hawks (0-2) 40-30 and Bruins (1-1) clipped A.V. Disaster Squad (0-1) 40-26.

In other action, it was Brotherhood (2-0) 40, Pressers (0-2) 24; James Gang (1-0) 40 ‘K’ (1-1) 20, and Wild Blue (2-0) 40, Ley (0-1) 24.

No tournament, Cobras end 11-5

BY JOHN COOPER

It is a shame that now that the basketball season is over for the Cobras, they are unable to compete in the Ohio Branch Conference tournament.

Due to earlier orders from main campus, Stark Campus will be unable to defend the state championship which it has held for two consecutive years.

It is hoped that this motion will be reconsidered in order to allow the Cobras and other Kent branches to compete this season.

The Cobras concluded regular season play with a pair of victories last weekend.

Stark upset Salem 94-81 and followed that game with a 99-72 victory over East Liverpool to finish with a record of 11-5.

Salem had entered the game undefeated in regional campus play and Stark administered the first defeat, which had to be the most cherished victory of the season.

Trailing most of the first half including a 43-34 halftime deficit, the Cobras rallied in the second half behind several steals by guard Jim Kramer.

Stark was trailing 56-54 midway through the second half when Kramer under dribbled his man and Stark scored to tie the game.

Seconds later, Kramer recorded another steal and center Mike Finn sunk a hook shot to give the Cobras a lead they never relinquished.

In the next eight minutes, Stark outscored Salem 33-12 to waltz to victory.

Tim Gatts led the charge with 27 points, Don Chlysty bucketed 25 and Flint counted 23.

The Cobras also controlled the boards 81-49, with Gary Jackson hauling down 21 stray shots.

Concluding the season at East Liverpool, the Cobras completely outgunned the Bridgers.

Running to a 55-39 halftime lead, the Cobras placed six men in double figures.

Finn meshed 29 points, Gatts had 20, Kramer sunk 13, Cliff Ball and Jay Roman contributed 11 each and Jackson pumped in 10.

Again the Cobras grabbed 81 rebounds to control the boards, with Jackson collecting 23.
