BARABAS AND GILMORE CHOSEN TO HEAD NEW ADMINISTRATION

Drawing nearly 68 per cent of the vote, Ed Barabas was elected student body president over Larry McCorkle. Tammy Gilmore was elected vice president with 78 per cent of the vote.

Only 254 students voted in this year’s election, the lowest turnout at KSUSC going back as far as 1969.

Barabas drew 162 votes, McCorkle 99. Three write-in votes were cast.

Gilmore, the first woman to hold the office of vice-president, received 193 votes while her opponent, Tom Andrews, received 50 votes.

When asked why he didn’t campaign, Barabas said that he was confident of winning and that he wanted to show the administration that he could win a decisive victory on the basis of the 46-hour requirement issue alone.

Barabas has been actively working for change in the residency policy.

Barabas said that one of his immediate goals is to establish an open dialogue with the administration and the director’s office in particular.

Commenting on his planned relationship with the administration, Barabas said, “I don’t intend to be belligerent, unless student rights are involved.”

Barabas added that he didn’t think Jack Morehart, KSUSC director, deals with the students, and wants to see the director’s office open to students.

A second immediate goal Barabas mentioned was strengthening the student senate. Gilmore, a freshman rhetoric and communication major, sees her position as vice-president as “having a lot of potential.”

Gilmore also emphasized the need for a strong student senate. She added that the senate must have input from the students in order to be effective.

Be single-minded, vice-president-elect declined to comment on the residency policy issue until she had consulted with Barabas.

Dressler Road

Hope that the poor condition of Dressler Road may be improved by fall has been expressed by Robert Kolopis, chief engineer of the Stark County Engineering Department.

Kolopis said the road would be covered with asphalt and blacktop.

The Dressler Road project was begun almost a year ago, then in conjunction with the Cobra Road project, now completed.

Dressler Road was covered last winter with an oil treatment and a chip and seal base. Since then, the road has deteriorated, causing hazardous driving conditions.

Watergate scandal discussed by Congressman Seiberling

“The Kent State murders of four years ago were a direct result of Nixon’s Cambodian invasion. The House of Representatives is finally doing something about that,” Congressman John Seiberling (D-14) told students, faculty and staff members May 11.

Seiberling was on hand to discuss House refusal May 10 to transfer funds to increase bombing of Cambodia and to appropriate additional funds for the same purpose.

Seiberling voted against the President in both cases.

“Obviously, I was going to be another Gulf of Tonkin resolution and we weren’t going to be any part of it,” he explained.

The Democratic caucus recommendation ofSeiberling was to vote for it.

But if the student body, Seiberling told Nixon 144-22 a week ago Wednesday.

Speaking said he ran for office because “something was radically wrong. I didn’t want to be alone.”

“Washington,” he said. “The political process is far from what it ought to be and could be in this country,” he added. “I hope to be able to help change that.”

Seiberling also discussed the impeachment of President Gerald Ford. Seiberling said he voted in favor of building the Alaskan pipeline on a Canadian route.

“Losing the pipeline,” he said, “will cost $1 per gallon within the next five years.”

The full Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, Subcommittee on Public Lands and Natural Resources, is Seiberling’s special committee.

Seiberling graduated from Saint Vincent (V.) School and from the University of Akron.

He served as a member of the House of Representatives since 1971. Before that he was an attorney for the law firm of Donnan, Leisure, Newton and Irvine in New York and for The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. in Akron.

Seiberling served three terms as President of Tri-County Regional Planning Commission in Akron. He was the founder of the Summit County Committee for Peace in Vietnam. He was also chairman of the World Peace through Law Committee, Akron Bar Association.

Seiberling is co-chairman of the Foreign Affairs Task Force and chairman of Members of Congress for Peace through Law.

He is a member of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, Subcommittee of National Parks and Recreation and Subcommittee of Mines and Mining.

He is married to the former Elizabeth Behr. They have three sons, John, David and Stephen.
Explanation of transcendental meditation given to audience

Transcendental meditation is not a religion nor is it a withdrawal from normal activity. It is a simple, scientifically verified technique whereby one "transcends" normal thought to achieve "pure intellung." These ideas were put forth by Dana Noel during a talk May 7 at Stark Campus.

Noel, area instructor in transcendental meditation, studied almost a year under Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. Noel contended that "strong, pure thought would result in constructive actions. He expressed a belief that as far as the mind is concerned, "We're not operating at full capacity." He said meditation would increase power of the mind.

Although a person may be in deep meditation, full awareness is constantly maintained, Noel stressed. He said two Harvard University professors had shown a person, during such meditation, has a lower metabolic rate than if he was in a state of deep sleep, but full awareness was still maintained.

Noel said transcendental meditation has been successful many times with mentally retarded persons.

The possibility exists that a transcendental meditation organization might be formed at the Stark Campus.

Students International Meditation Society (SIMS), a profit educational organization, has applied for recognition as a student organization.

Their membership is pending approval of student government and administration. If approved, Dr. Edward Swingle, assistant professor of speech, would be the club advisor.

Task of funding scholarships begun by campus committee

The KSUSC Scholarship Committee has been empowered to raise funds to offer half-tuition scholarships for the 1973-74 academic year. The committee is composed of representatives from the student body, faculty and administration.

Basic methods to raise funds include fund raising activities, gifts from people in the community and voluntary payroll deductions from faculty and staff.

Cobra netters continue down Victory Lane with 8-1 record

The Cobra tennis squad kept its near-perfect road, following an 8-1 May 3 thrashing by K.S.U. Ashbatula, with a pair of wins over K.S.U. Warren 8-1 and Lakeland Community College 6-3.

In the May 9 contest at K.S.U. Warren, the Cobra netters triumphed with victories by Mike Volunteer, Don Santangelo, Tom Breedlove, Gary Bernardo and DiAntonio. Only Gary Lipel tasted defeat for the Cobras in singles play. The Cobras also took all three doubles match ups as Valentine and Breedlove, Santangelo and Joe Cozy and Dennis Interliggi and Mike Apostolides chalked up pluses for the Stark squad.

The Cobras found the going a little rougher against the Lakeland net gang. Don Santangelo, Tom Breedlove, Mike DiAntonio and Gary Bernardo showed success in singles action while the Valentine-Breedlove combination and the Santangelo-DiAntonio pair came out on top in the doubles.

No information was available at press time on the Lorain Community College Match at the Lorain site.

KSUSC in sports tourney

KSUSC will be represented in the Sixth Annual Spring Sports Tournament hosted by Miami University Middletown (M.U.M.) May 16-19.

The tournament will consist of golf and tennis competition. The tournament format calls for a golf team of four men and a tennis team of three men and three women. Individual as well as team trophies will be awarded in both sports.

The field will be made up of 22 Ohio branch campus teams representing parent schools Kent State; Bowling Green, Miami, Ohio, Ohio State, and Wright State. KSUSC initiated the idea, as well as hosted the first Spring Sport’s Tournament which took place on the KSU campus. In that tournament, bowling was included on the agenda. KSUSC has hosted the tournament twice, MUM, the state’s second largest branch campus, is hosting the event for the first time.

FIRST AID AND HEALTH CARE CENTER

Do you realize if you are sick or injured that there is an Emergency Health Center located in room 103 (student affairs). KSUSC has always had the health center, but the percentage of students who know about it is very low.

Robert Pendlter, assistant director for student affairs, said the center has served all health and emergency needs with reasonable success. The center’s job is if at all possible, to immediately handle all first aid situations. “We rely on the security personnel, and when the emergency or illness exceeds the skill of a first aid practitioner, then the Jackson Township Fire and Emergency Squad at the Golden Village Shopping Center will handle the situation,” he said.
