ICON

Winter 1974

ICON Winter 1974

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.kent.edu/icon

Part of the Art and Design Commons, and the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

This Full Issue is brought to you for free and open access by the Kent State University at Trumbull at Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. It has been accepted for inclusion in ICON by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@kent.edu.
This issue of the ICON is dedicated to the struggle for expression that makes men free.
HOW SUBMISSIONS ARE SELECTED

Works to be considered for publication are submitted to Mrs. Hoobler, ICON faculty advisor. She substitutes, in place of the submitter’s name, a number; thus only she knows the identity of the individual authors. Each staff member is then given a xeroxed copy of each submission to be considered for the current issue. After final selections are made, the staff’s copies are returned to Mrs. Hoobler and destroyed, thereby prohibiting the circulation of unauthorized copies of anyone’s works. The final step in the selection of material is the staff selection meeting, when the ICON staff in its entirety meets to discuss and vote upon the final selections for publication. This choice is the sole decision of the student staff. Only after the final selections have been made does the advisor reveal the identity of those individuals whose works have been chosen.

No portion of the ICON may be reproduced without the consent of the individual contributors.
ICON

Winter, 1974

VOLUME IX

ICON, the literary magazine of the Trumbull Campus of Kent State University, is sponsored by the English Department in conjunction with the Art Department.

Faculty, students, former students of the Trumbull Campus, all Kent State Campuses, and other universities are invited to submit poetry, essays, fiction, art work, or photography. We welcome submissions from anyone—student or nonstudent—in the Trumbull County area.

ICON Advisor: Elizabeth Hoobler
Editors: Danita J. Armstrong
Susan Spangenberg

Staff: Jerry Arbogast
Vilissa Banks
Gail I. Clearwater
Kathi Evanoff
Michael Gustovich
Karin Hummell
Laura H. Maynor
Annamay Hope McCarty
Marcia Elaine Phillips
Roy James Ware
Deanna L. Whitman

Various illustrations throughout the magazine were drawn by Michael Gustovich.

Cover Design: taken from a photograph by Bob Green

We hereby extend our special thanks to Mrs. Carol Perich for her typing assistance.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Hugh M. Hyre                    photograph .............................  1
William Banks                   WHO AM I?/poem ..........................  2
Lori Steinmetz                 THE FOOTSTEPS OF TIME/poem  ....  3
Shelley Beth Wilkes            TANKA/poem ..............................  4 June Brobst                    SOMETIMES I THINK LOVING YOU IS A NUISANCE/poem .......................  5
                               KEATS/poem ............................  6
Steve Myers                    photograph ..................................  7
David C. Ross                  Quaker saying ...............................  8
Mr. D.                         ..................................  9
Michael Vail                   FAR AWAY I HEAR DRUMMERS/fiction .  10
Don Cunningham                 LOVE IS LONELY/song .........................  11
Grace Allison                  THAT OTHER WORLD/poem ......................  12
Elaine S. Montellese           DOWN BY THE WATER WILLOWS/poem .  13
Janice Stuer                   DAYBREAK/art ................................  14
James P. Curran               RECALLING YOU AS I DO/poem ............  15
Elaine S. Montellese           MY BELOVED NOVICE/poem.................  16
Linda Joseph                   A RETROSPECT/poem ..........................  17
Hugh M. Hyre                   photograph ..................................  18
James P. Curran               THE FOG IS THICK/poem ....................  19
Kathi Evannoﬀ                  WHAT HAPPENED TO THE RHyme? ........  20
Teresa Gail Moore              HE AIN'T NO FOOL/poem .....................  21
Alan R. Cholera                LIFE'S ASSEMBLY/poem .....................  22
Alan R. Cholera                ADRIFT/poem .............................  23
Larry Oliver                   AN EMPTY ROOM EXISTS/poem ...............  24
Larry Lapmarado                art ..................................  25
Contributors                    ................................ ..  26
WHO AM I?

William Banks

I took another step
And kneeling gazed into the deep clear waters--
So still and yet alive with reflections
Of the heavens peaceful and serene-- Lying as in slumber covered with soft clouds,
Drapes of willow and columbine, flitting swallows,
And yellow butterflies.
I gazed, and from the depths
A faintly familiar face appears and gazes back
And looks deeply into my eyes and searches
For an answer--
Who am I?
I ask in return, Who am I?
The past unfolds and lies before me
As an open book to search, to understand Yesterday so close and yet so far
A childhood filled with laughter but so Fleetingly remembered-- a father's smile
A mother's love, then faster still I see or hear a brother's call
A braid of my sister's hair
A pet that runs the meadows
The rain coming down, a rainbow
A ray of sun, the flowers, a hill
A friendly call, a hand, a tear
A voice all remembered in a fleeting moment.
And I know
I am the Past,
The Present, and yes, the Future. Who am I?
I am a part of all that has been,
That is or will be. And all that was,
Or is, or ever comes to pass is a part of me.

THE FOOTSTEPS OF TIME

Lorri Steinmetz

As I walked along the beach
In the tranquil, forgotten valleys
Between the Mountains of the Past
And the Seas of the Future,
I saw the Footsteps of Time
Walk silently about.

The footsteps, old with age
But never stopping to linger,
Haven't forgotten the time-worn places.

Time marches swiftly and in the Man-forgotten Valleys of the Present;
Time
Echoes

On.

June Brobst

Sometimes I think loving you is a nuisance,
A pointless waste of time and energy.
But when we meet you smile,
And then I know how much I need you.
THE FOOTSTEPS OF TIME

Lorri Steinmetz

As I walked along the beach
In the tranquil, forgotten valleys
Between the Mountains of the Past
And the Seas of the Future,
I saw the Footsteps of Time
Walk silently about.

The footsteps, old with age
But never stopping to linger,
Have not forgotten the time-worn places.

Time marches swiftly and in the Man-forgotten Valleys of the Present;
Time
Echoes On.

TANKA

Shelley Beth Wilkes

White doves sing to me as I wander through the woods.
silent and lonely,
searching for a wild flower
to brighten my empty world.

June Brobst

Sometimes I think loving you is a nuisance,
A pointless waste of time and energy.
But when we meet you smile,
And then I know how much I need you.
Keats

Steve Myers

Keats is accused of liking sweets-- but though he dreamed out loud,
he was no fancy man,
no pimp for fame
or his time's treats.
Abused, he didn't disappear,
restrain his painful breath-- or kiss their feet for publicity-- instead he tried to cheat the cold of final, ultimate winter, winter out of season, winter
coming before his June, he tried to beat that cold with living words, breathing lines "million-pleasured," sense-drunk phrases beating like spurring hearts,
like flowered, radiant wings.

Ah! when Keats sings the pale page blazes with suns, moons, stars, galaxies of metaphoric light,
that bright noon, that vivid night.
My single sight shatters,
and, like thousands of pieces of glass,
dances
out a mirror universe of Keats-bred flowers and birds and castles and lakes and "golden sand" with "pebbles milky white" and "frozen grass" and eyes
"all dewy bright with love."

He threw language into the air
to net a passing beauty;
he burned inside
to give us his soft radiant breath,
to leave no part unused,
to let his full breath pass into beauty to become the honeyed sound of pure delight.
And when he died
and his chest was opened they found his lungs were gone,
had fled into words,
were consumed in living poetry.

Had I met thee only in d still would I have known beauty.

"found in a letter by Myers"
Had I met thee only in darkness, still would I have known of thy beauty.

—found in a Quaker letter by Mr. D.
Love Is Lone

Ilords

and music by

Dor

Ananged

bv

Beth,

Michael

Vail

ar drummers

drumming

and pipers

piping,

and

I

somewhere

someone

looks down

on us

and smiles.

Far away

there are birds

singing

and

wind

blowing

ever

so

softly,

and

the sun

is shining

brightly

on us.

I

look at

you

--

knowing that

I

love

you

--

and

you smile

back,

loving me.

I

close

my eyes

in belief

that nothing will ever separate

us

and sleep.

Sleep.

Suddenly

thunder

clashes

in my head

and

lightning

flies

before

my eyes

and blinds

me.

I

struggle with myself

fighting,

trying,

hoping

that

I

can see

you

once again.

Darkness

separates

me

from

the world.

Now

there

are no

drummers

drumming,

no

pipers

piping,

no

wind

blowing

ever

so

softly,

no

sun

shining

on me.

There

are no

smiles

for now.

I

am

broken,

alone,

crying

--

for you are gone.

I

walk

this land

searching,

looking for something that cannot be found

by others

--

only

by me.

I

search

for you

--

my worldly

existence,

my only happiness.

My

only

being is because of my love

and my hoping

for you.

I

walk

fearing

that

I

am

forever

separated

from

you,

and

I

am

saddened

by

the thought

so

I
cry.

Then

far away

I

hear

drummers

drumming

and

pipers

piping,

and someone

looks

down

and

smiles

at me.

I

hear

birds

singing

and

wind

blowing

ever

so

softly

and

the sun

shines

brightly

on me.

I

laugh.

I

am happy.

I

can

open

my eyes

and

smile

once again.

This

time

forever

--

for you

are

with me.

Dedicated

to

Larry

H.

Morris

who died
Love Is Lonely
Words and music by Don Cunningham
Arranged by Beth Hoobler

THAT OTHER WORLD
Grace Allison

I quietly left this world of reality
And set sail on a beautiful dream sea
For the blue beyond looked ever so rosy
Surely somewhere was a cove very cozy
A place not needing that called time.

And as I left this world of reality
To go sailing on that beautiful sea
So many were the wants and wishes I had Certain was I my heart would be glad
In that timeless place – dreamland.

But the further I sailed on my dream sea
Far, far away from this world of reality
More and More did I realize those chains
Which to me were physical and mental pains
Would not let me be free in that other world.

DOWN BY THE WATER

Down by the lake where the water will be
is a dock.
The lake laps at its underside wearing a
of its aging life.
Inanimate objects supposedly contain no lives.
In the summer the wood grows weary -

I come in the evening when everyone’s
and listen to its tired sighs.
Summer stretches on.
The dock endures it all.
Filling each pore with memories, the dock
-time for joy and overlook the base; yet face leaving scars which now my fingers

I step lightly when summer’s through,
Water willows weep then too
their tears a balmy salty few (bare bran

The last cookout fires burn low.
Rape the dock.
No one will know.
Wooden endless fingers grow.

The dock welcomes the winter. Oblivie body rests.

Spring seeps in. Summer waits in its sh
The dock awakens and awaits its cheri
DOWN BY THE WATER WILLOWS

Elaine S. Montellese

Down by the lake where the water willows grow into the water is a dock.

The lake laps at its underside wearing away minuscule minutes of its aging life.

Inanimate objects supposedly contain no life, but I know it lives.

In the summer the wood grows weary —— children run its length jumping off its head, its arms and legs.

I come in the evening when everyone’s gone, stroke the boards and listen to its tired sighs.

Summer stretches on.

The dock endures it all.

Filling each pore with memories, the children exchange their time for joy and overlook the base; yet every day they run its face leaving scars which now my fingers trace.

I step lightly when summer’s through,
Water willows weep then too
their tears a balmy salty few (bare branches soon exposed).

The last cookout fires burn low.
Rape the dock.
No one will know.
Wooden endless fingers grow.

The dock welcomes the winter. Oblivious to the elements its body rests.

Spring seeps in. Summer waits in its shadow.
The dock awakens and awaits its cherished visitors!
Daybreak

Janice Stuer

recalling you as i do is often like the sound of the sun
setting on my soul

James P. Curran
MY BELOVED NOVICE

Elaine S. Montellese

In times of loneliness I remember you.

I dwell on lines I would trace on your face.

This comforts me.
Precious little thought you gave to the act of tracing lines.

Did you know I would make boats from your smiles?

The happier you were the stronger our vessel.

We sailed beyond time and I can tell you now I always used to cut the anchor line so we would stay together in that boat made from your smile till we drifted our way back to the shore -- your damned reality.

It was then I knew I had to leave you.
I would make you a prisoner of your own happiness if I stayed -- and I loved you too much to have that happen.

Happiness is a gift to be shared, not hoarded by any one person, especially without knowledge.
A RETROSPECT

Linda Joseph

It was not enough to be the scapegoat for the hated crimes against humanity or to give away wisdom to the masses.

It was not enough to talk away the nights in the temple and forget my heritage and become the fool of Jerusalem.

It was not enough to turn away the women saying, "I am a holy man, the son of God," and to forsake my seed.

It was not enough to gather the twelve together and show them the way and to perform the miracles for the masses.

What should I have done?

Even my greatest effort was not enough--that I gave my life for an uncaring world that wished for relief, while I gave only the truth.
Hugh M. Hyre

James P. Curran

the fog is thick
and comes in a silent prayer to cover the ambitions of the night.
A long, hollow voice
sits on the sea
loving the moon
and the stars run
to hide in fright.

an old man crying:
looks, thinks, and quietly dies
WHAT HAPPENED TO THE RHYME?

Kathi Evanoff

An extra effort from the mind
Will show above all else --
As every student must admit
From deep within himself --
Our parents' authors may have written Long before our time
But in reading new, young poetry
What happened to the rhyme?

What happened to the rhythm
Only classics now possess?
Has rhyme along with fantasy
Been laid to blissful rest?
And where's the happy endings
That used to bring a grin?
Are despair and gloom the only thing
That students have within?

I'm quite aware of all the sadness Hovering around.
War and hatred, greed and lust
Has torn our hallowed ground.
But deep within our lowly hearts
I'm sure we'll find the time
To make an extra effort
To bring back forgotten rhyme.

HE AIN'T NO FOOL

The pusherman is cool, he ain't
He ain't the one that's shooting
He ain't the one beggin' from a
You see the pusherman's cool,
While you out robbing bars
He's out driving super fine cars,
He's making all the bread
So man you might as well be dLetting all that shit go to your While you out acting a fool
The pusherman is sitting cool.
That's cause he ain't no fool.
HE AIN'T NO FOOL

Teresa Gail Moore

The pusherman is cool, he ain't no fool.
He ain't the one that's shooting up.
He ain't the one beggin from a tin cup.
You see the pusherman's cool, he ain't no fool.
While you out robbing bars
He's out driving super fine cars.
He's making all the bread
So man you might as well be dead
Letting all that shit go to your head!
While you out acting a fool
The pusherman is sitting cool.
That's cause he ain't no fool.
LIFE'S ASSEMBLY

Alan R. Cholera

I've just been placed on the assembly line of life,
My body is complete;
I've been given a head and trunk, two arms and a pair of feet;
As the wheels of life start rolling they add to me my trim,
Twelve years of education, at that time life seems dim;
The question is my future, or reason for my birth;
I must find an occupation, a function here on earth;
To the power of my life, they add a few more gears;
I see a brighter future, half through my college years;
To drive the highways of tomorrow, I must pass through the final gate;
Greet the challenge of my destiny, and shake the hand of fate.

ADRIIFT

Across the grey river there lies the green shore,
Beyond lies the valley where drift my memories of time.
Deep in the valley—
the home of my birth,
Beneath a lone willow, summation of my worth,
There the moss grows shaded from the sun,
Likewise a mother shades her innocent young,
Pollination in young, life's stormy breeze tears from the mother her youth with such ease.
Adrift in life's air, across the grey shore innocence of youth, a memory, nothing more.
Adult, like a plant, he must stand, domesticate the world, and cover the land.
He'll bear not fruit of his mother's choice, but a poison of hate, and in it rejoice.
In time's great hand earth shall be bound, with strangling vines green moss not to be found.
ACROSS THE GREY RIVER

there lies the green shore, Beyond lies the valley where drift my memories once more.
Deep in the valley--
the home of my birth,
Beneath a lone willow,
summation of my worth,
There the moss grows
shaded from the sun, Likewise a mother
shades her innocent young.
Pollination in young,
life's stormy breeze
tears from the mother
her youth with such ease.
Adrift in life's air,
across the grey shore
innocence of youth,
a memory, nothing more.
Adult, like a plant,
he must stand,
domesticate the world,
and cover the land.
He'll bear not fruit
of his mother's choice,
but a poison of hate,
and in it rejoice.
In time's great hand
earth shall be bound,
with strangling vines
green moss not to be found.
An empty room exists filled with a web of reality.
Tortured minds seek more docile times only to find seething horror within.

A snake abides there endlessly coiling,
   endlessly preying;
Its fangs engorged with a venom, its bite injects a deadly truth-- a four letter word called reality.

Light reflects off silken strands;
sounds of gentle laughter float gentle on air.
Both promising an inner peace of Camelot only to yield a living death of hell.

A spider abides there endlessly spinning,
   endlessly waiting;
Its mouth pierces the victim’s throat it drinks the blood of aspiration leaving reality to fill the vacuum.

Bells softly chime golden music;
flowing colors lure the unsuspecting inside.
There, the bells now sound a deafening scream;
the colors vomit hideous atrocities that blind.

A woman abides there endlessly promising;
   endlessly seducing;
her lips press a lingering kiss,
her limbs openly await with alluring passion transporting her victim deeper into stark reality.
CONTRIBUTORS

GRACE ALLISON, a Warren resident, has published in THE CLOVER COLLECTION OF VERSE. This marks her first appearance in the ICON.

JUNE BROBST is a junior conservation major. This is her debut in the ICON.

ALAN R. CHOLERA, a junior majoring in education, has previously published in the ICON.

DON CUNNINGHAM is a freshman speech major. This is his first appearance in the ICON.

JAMES P. CURRAN, a KSUTC freshman, has published in THE ANNUAL ANTHOLOGY OF COLLEGE POETRY.

MR. D. is an anonymous contributor who did not want to see beauty lost.

KATHI EVANOFF, a resident of Newton Falls, is making her debut in the ICON.

BOB GREEN, a senior at Champion High School, has had photography printed in various area newspapers.

HUGH M. HYRE is a sophomore pre-med student. His photography has been seen in various publications including the ICON.

LINDA JOSEPH, a freshman majoring in news cinematography, has previously published in the ICON.

LARRY LAPMARADO is a freshman art student. This marks his first appearance in the ICON.

ELAINE S. MONTELESE is making her second appearance in the ICON.

THERESA GAIL MOORE, a sophomore speech and hearing major, is making her debut in the ICON.

STEVE MYERS, a graduate of KSU, is making his first appearance in the ICON.

LARRY OLIVER is a sophomore English major. This marks his debut in the ICON.

DAVID C. ROSS, a senior at Howland High School, has had material published in the HOWLAND LITERARY SCRIBE.

LORRI STEINMETZ, a freshman at Chalker High School, is making her first appearance in the ICON.

JANICE STUER is a freshman fine arts major who has previously published in the HOWLAND LITERARY SCRIBE.

MICHAEL VAIL, a freshman biology major, is making his debut in the ICON.

SHELLEY BETH WILKES, a freshman, is making her first appearance in the ICON.