To Commencement & Beyond

The guide to knowing your resources, knowing when to make up your mind, & trusting the journey will be worth it in the end.
Make It Yours

The dedication, sacrifice, and hard work that had been put into obtaining an Undergraduate degree had paid off, right? As the Commencement Song ended, and the tassel has been switched to the other side of the cap, the next morning implies the Dream Job is starting, right? Or it could mean, the adventure to Graduate school awaits the next semester. All the ideas of life are magically going as planned, and everything is lined up and ready to go, right? For a large population of college students, this isn't the case. This study explores the abundant amount of students who are undecided in where their journey leads them after Commencement, and into the world beyond their Undergraduate life.

What resources are available?

- Career Services: Internships, Career Assessments, MyPlan Assessments Career Advising, Graduate Program Assistance. Located in the Academic Success Center, lower level of Campus Center.
- Academic Advising: Taking correct classes, knowing what majors offer Individual Investigation Opportunities. Located in Main Hall.
- Student Involvement: Clubs and organizations, Honors Program, Volunteering, Mentoring, Student Employment. Located in Main Hall and Campus Center.

Focus on What You Do Best: Questioning your major is understandable. Learning about your personal goals and values early through Career Services will allow you to determine what makes a better fit. Once you hone in on your values and interests, look at Individual study options, internships, and volunteer services to gain experience in interested options. Acknowledge a change may be needed and reset your goals. Seek advising, or other campus supports.

You might want to mention:

- Find what meets your interests, not how you tailor yourself to a specific position.
- Investigate your options: Career fields, graduate school options, and weigh you pros and cons.
- If it doesn’t work, try it again!

Key Offerings

Don’t be shy! Speak up if you are questioning your educational journey! Getting help and changing your direction sooner than later will help you in the long run. Know you are not alone in your indecisions, and explore every option available to you on campus.

Make It Picture Perfect

You have to be responsible for your journey.
You have to be resilient in exploration of your dreams.
You have to want it for yourself.
