Biographical Sketch

I am a second year Interior Design major, with a minor in Marketing. I chose to go into Interior Design because of the impact it can have on people's lives. I love that something so small and seemingly insignificant can change how people look at things or how they can interact with a space. There are so many different sectors of design that one can go into, including but not limited to healthcare, residential, civic, community, retail, hospitality and more. Each area of design has their own unique approach to human behavior.

I have always had a strong interest in the arts and literature, and I think that carried over into my passion for design. I also love history, and I really enjoy historic preservation and rehabilitation of both buildings and communities. The fact that through design, people can restore old and worn down to something beautiful again is fascinating to me.
