

Fall 2009

An Extremely Important Ending

Brian Miskowich

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.kent.edu/platypus>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Miskowich, Brian (2009) "An Extremely Important Ending," The Platypus: Vol. 2 , Article 45.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.kent.edu/platypus/vol2/iss1/45>

This Artists in Words is brought to you for free and open access by the Kent State University at Ashtabula at Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Platypus by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Kent State University Libraries. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@kent.edu.

An Extremely Important Ending

Brian Miskowich

This is very much a life lived wrong.

Started wrong.

Marveling at the world, at the abstract.

(Computers.)

But unable to connect, unable to disconnect

Enough to speak in a land of distant speech.

The mystery of separation.

Why?

Why not speak?

Why not gaze upon the face of friends and be uplifted?

We shall all descend into an endless, ghostly phase,

Apocalypse walking, shuffling, mumbling.

Nobody left, nobody home.

Forgotten foes to stalk our homes,
forgotten too, to be left asunder,

Adrift, aflame in cold vapor, the world's reconfiguration.

Iced and stinging, empty streets, the populace lost.

Adrift, unable.

All lights are green, impending impact,
the structure toppling,
a domino clatter.

Faceless, nobody to see it, no minds left large enough, open enough to fit within them witness.

The end, and we nowhere found, not there to see it, candles in the windy sunlight.